Nov. Is Foundation Month...

The world's greatest minds have always envisioned the impossible: flight, the artificial heart, a vaccine for polio. Jeffrey Sachs, who spoke at the 2006 RI Convention, sees an end to poverty. Not one to mince words, he once told the UN General Assembly, "Millions of people die every year for the stupid reason they are too poor

David Baker, Assistant District Governor, from Chicago South chairs a committee that has endured many hours of blood, sweat, and tears constructing a playground for St. Elizabeth's, a Catholic Grade School on the South Side of Chicago. With no assistance from the parish, Rotary volunteers took down trees and shrubery, stripped benches, installed a chain link fence, painted it, and erected a playground set. An extended benefit for their efforts was the creation of a new RotarAct Club in the community.

to stay alive." Marian Wright Edelman, president of the U.S. organization Children's Defense Fund, asks why 24 industrialized nations have a lower infant mortality rate than the United States. Each insists we can do better. Doing better is the reason behind the high-impact projects funded by The Rotary Foundation's new global grants. The grants are part of the Foundation's Future Vision Plan. District grants will give Rotarians increased flexibility in choosing projects.
